

Story starter!

Every night they would come. They were never seen or heard, but they were always there.

All around the world, as the sun faded beyond the horizon, and the gentle sound of children's snores could be heard as they slept in their beds, the Dreamgivers would come.

Quieter than a field mouse and stealthier than a midnight fox, they would gently lean over their sleeping victims and whisper their curious melody into unhearing ears.

This is how dreams are given, whether they be peaceful and tranquil fantasies, or whether they torment the sleeper as they are confronted with their deepest, darkest fears...

I wonder what this child would dream of tonight?

Can you continue the story about the Dreamgivers?

Question time!

- ▶ Where do you think the Dreamgivers come from?
- ▶ What do you think determines whether the child has a nightmare or a dream?
- ▶ Why do we sometimes remember our dreams, but often forget them?
- ▶ Many people believe that our dreams often have hidden meanings. Do you believe this is true?
- ▶ Can you remember a dream you have had before? Have you ever had the same dream twice?
- ▶ Do you think the Dreamgivers are friendly?
- ▶ Where do you think our dreams come from?
- ▶ What is the difference between a dream and a nightmare?
- ▶ Have you ever had déjà vu? Do you believe it is significant?

Sentence challenge!

Can you use a series of questions in your writing? Remember to use a question mark!

E.g. Was there something in my bedroom? I was sure I had heard muffled footsteps, or was I perhaps still dreaming?

Sick sentences!

These sentences are 'sick' and need help to get better. Can you help? Could you add an adverb?

- ▶ There was a big, big thing in the room.
- ▶ It had fur and small eyes.
- ▶ It stood there really still.

Perfect picture!

Can you describe or draw a picture of your perfect dream?

